August 1993 Tampa Bay Oil Spill: Notice of Availability of a Final Damage Assessment and Restoration Plan and the Environmental Assessment of That Plan

AGENCIES: National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), Commerce, United States Department of the Interior (DOI), and Department of Environmental Protection, State of Florida (Florida DEP).

ACTION: Notice of availability of a final damage assessment and restoration plan and of an environmental assessment of that plan.

SUMMARY: Notice is given that the document entitled Final Damage Assessment and Restoration Plan for the 1993 Tampa Bay Oil Spill, Volume I-Ecological Injuries (Final DARP, Volume I) has been approved by the NOAA, DOI, and Florida DEP and is available to the public. This document is the first part of the damage assessment and restoration plan to be completed by the State and Federal natural resource trustees to assess natural resource damages for the injury, loss, destruction and lost use of natural resources which resulted from the August 1993 oil spill in Tampa Bay, Florida. The Final DARP, Volume I, identifies the methods that will be used to restore and compensate for natural resources injuries and losses of an ecological nature.

ADDRESSES: Requests for copies of the Final DARP, Volume I, should be sent to Jim Jeansonne of NOAA Damage Assessment Center, 9721 Executive Center Drive N., Suite 134, St. Petersburg, FL 33702, or Jane Urquhart-Donnelly of the Florida DEP, Bureau of Emergency Response, 8407 Laurel Fair Circle, Rm. 214, Tampa, FL 33610. FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Jim Jeansonne of the NOAA Damage Assessment Center, (813) 570–5391 or Jane Urquhart-Donnelly of the Florida DEP, (813) 744–6462.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On August 10, 1993, at approximately 5:45 a.m., the tank barge "OCEAN 255" and the tank barge "B–155" collided with the freighter "BALSA 37" just south of Mullet Key in lower Tampa Bay, Florida. The collision resulted in damage to the vessels and the discharge of approximately 32,000 gallons of Jet A fuel, diesel, and gasoline, and 330,000 gallons of #6 fuel oil, into Tampa Bay. A number of different natural resources were eventually exposed to oil as a result of these discharges, including mangroves, seagrasses, salt marshes, birds, sea turtles, shellfish beds, bottom sediments, sandy shorelines and the estuarine water column, with a variety of direct injuries and lost uses of natural resources documented to have resulted from such exposure.

The incident is subject to the authority of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, 33 U.S.C. 2701-2761 (OPA), the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, 33 U.S.C. 1321 et seq. (FWPCA) and the Florida Pollutant Discharge and Control Act, Fla. Stat. 376.121. NŎAA, DOI, and Florida DEP are trustees for natural resources pursuant to the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 9601 et seq., OPA, the FWPCA, subpart G of the National Oil and Hazardous Substances Pollution Contingency Plan, 40 CFR 300.600-300.615, and, in the case of the Florida DEP, the Florida Pollutant Discharge and Control Act, Fla Stat. 376.121 (1994), and in the case of the Federal trustees, Executive Order 12777.

The Final DARP, Volume I, is the assessment and restoration plan developed by the trustees to address the direct injuries to natural resources and the interim losses of ecological resource services caused by the spill. This final document also includes the Federal trustees' Environmental Assessment (EA) of the restoration plan pursuant to the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The EA, which is fully integrated into the Final DARP, Volume I, represents the Federal trustees' evaluation of the likely impacts of alternatives proposed for resource recovery and compensation on the human environment. The EA was considered by the federal trustees in making determinations required by NEPA and decisions on the restoration plan for ecological injuries.

In developing the assessment and restoration plan for ecological injuries, the trustees prepared and publicly released a proposed plan, the Draft DARP, Volume I, dated December 1995 (Draft DARP). Notices published in the Federal Register on January 19, 1996 (61 Fed. Reg. 1357) and in the St. Petersburg Times, a newspaper of general circulation among communities in the Tampa Bay area, on January 7, 1996 announced the availability of the Draft DARP and a 45 day period for public comment on the proposed plan. Copies of the Draft DARP were also available for public review at the St. Petersburg Public Library, Main Library Reference Dept., in St. Petersburg, FL,
