ADDRESSES: Written comments or recommendations should be sent to the Director, National Park Service, U.S. Department of the Interior, P.O. Box 37127, Washington, D.C. 20240. Attention: World Heritage Convention-0050.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Convention Concerning Protection of the World Cultural and Natural Heritage, now ratified by the United States and 149 other countries, has established a system of international cooperation through which cultural and natural properties of outstanding universal value to humanity may be recognized and protected.

The Convention seeks to put into place an orderly approach for coordinated and consistent heritage resource protection and enhancement throughout the world.

Participating nations voluntarily identify and nominate their most important natural wonders and cultural treasures for inclusion on the World Heritage List, which currently includes 506 cultural, natural, and mixed properties. The World Heritage Committee judges all nominations against established criteria.

Under the Convention, each participating Nation assumes responsibility for taking appropriate legal, scientific, technical, administrative, and financial measures necessary for the identification, protection, 2 conservation, and rehabilitation of World Heritage properties situated within its borders. By the terms of the Convention, each nation explicitly retains full sovereignty over and complete ownership, legal authority and management responsibility for its World Heritage Sites. In the United States, for example, only United States law applies to the sites.

The World Heritage Committee, composed of 21 countries elected by the signatories to the Convention, reviews proposals to add new sites to the List once each year. The United States now serves on the Committee and has twice served as its Chair. The Committee administers the World Heritage Fund, which assists countries in participating in World Heritage activities related to the preservation of listed properties, particularly those on a List of World Heritage in Danger maintained by the Committee.

The United States has placed 20 sites on the List. Among them are Monticello and the Taos Pueblo, nominated with their owners' full support. National Parks are included in 17 World Heritage Sites—among which are the Grand Canyon, Independence Hall, Mammoth Cave, and Everglades. Two sites in the United States are on the List of World Heritage in Danger—Everglades and Yellowstone National Parks.

No United States nominations to the World Heritage List are pending. The Panel will review the process for possible U.S. nominations in calendar 1998 that might lead to consideration of sites for inscription in the World Heritage List at the World Heritage Committee meeting scheduled for the end of calendar 1999.

In the United States, the Department of the Interior is responsible for directing and coordinating U.S. participation in the World Heritage Convention. The Department implements its responsibilities under the Convention in accordance with the statutory mandate contained in Title IV of the National Historic Preservation Act Amendments of 1980 (P.L. 96-515; 16 U.S.C. 470a-1, a-2). On May 27, 1982, the Interior Department published in the Federal Register the policies and procedures which it uses to carry out this legislative mandate (47 FR 23392, 36 CFR 73). The rules contain additional information on the Convention and its implementation in the United States, and identify the specific requirements that U.S. properties must satisfy before they can be nominated for World Heritage status, i.e., the property must have previously been determined to be of national significance, its owner must concur in writing to its nomination, and its nomination must include evidence of such legal protections as may be necessary to ensure preservation of the property and its environment.

The program regulations; the criteria which cultural, natural, and mixed properties must satisfy for World Heritage status; the properties on the Indicative Inventory of Potential Future U.S. World Heritage nominations; and a list of the 20 U.S. properties inscribed on the World Heritage List as of the date of this notice are available upon request from the National Park Service.

The Federal Interagency Panel for World Heritage assists the Department in implementing the Convention by making recommendations on U.S. World Heritage policy, procedures, and nominations. The Panel is chaired by the Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks, and currently includes representatives from the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks, the National Park Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the U.S. Geological Survey within the Department of the Interior; the President's Council on Environmental Quality; the Smithsonian Institution; the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation; the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Department of Commerce; the U.S. Forest Service, Department of Agriculture; the U.S. Information Agency; and the Department of State.

Dated: October 7, 1997.
