

Regarding non-occupational exposures, sethoxydim is registered for use in non-crop areas and around the home and may have some potential for exposure to the general public. However, as discussed for clethodim, sethoxydim cannot be applied to grass where public contact is expected and sethoxydim is not persistent in the environment. Valent expects that non-occupational exposures to the public are therefore expected to be minimal for sethoxydim.

In summary, Valent expects that dietary exposure for clethodim and sethoxydim are each expected to occupy less than 10% of their RfD's when anticipated residue levels and percent of crop treated values are considered. Exposures through the drinking water or other non-occupational routes are expected to be minimal. Collectively, Valent believes that the aggregate risks associated with the uses of these two chemicals is small and demonstrates a reasonable certainty of no harm to the public.

2. Infants and children. As discussed above, dietary exposure for clethodim and sethoxydim is greatest for children ages 1 to 6 years or non-nursing infants less than 1 year old. However, using a realistic approach to estimating exposures, exposures are expected to be below 10% of the RfD for each chemical even for infants and children. The databases for clethodim and sethoxydim are complete relative to current pre- and post-natal toxicity testing requirements including developmental toxicity studies in two species and multi-generation reproduction studies in rats. Reproduction and developmental effects have been found in toxicology studies for clethodim and sethoxydim, but the effects were seen at levels that were also maternally toxic. This indicates that developing animals are not more sensitive than adults. FQPA requires an additional safety factor of up to 10 for chemicals which represent special risks to infants or children. Clethodim and sethoxydim do not meet the criterion for application of an additional safety factor for infants and children. Valent believes that this demonstrates a reasonable certainty of no harm to children and infants from the proposed uses of clethodim.

3. International tolerances. Although some have been proposed, there are no Canadian, Mexican, or Codex tolerances or maximum residue limits established for clethodim on tomatoes, alfalfa, peanuts, or dry beans. There are no conflicts between this proposed action and international residue limits.
