

The USWA, Local 1302, also assert that connecting rods for OMC were produced exclusively at OMC Milwaukee plant and those articles were outsourced to a foreign manufacturer. Information provided by the company during the petition investigation did not specifically identify connecting rods as one of the articles produced. The sales and production information submitted to the Department by the subject firm was for crankshafts, drive shafts, propellers and miscellaneous steel products (which included connecting rods).

In order to respond to the USWA, Local 1302, the Department contacted the subject firm, which confirmed that connecting rods were produced at the Milwaukee plant of the subject firm. The company had planned to outsource the production of connecting rods to a domestic manufacturer, but chose a foreign supplier. There were no company of connecting rods during the time period relevant to the investigation, nor have any company imports occurred since the March 3, 2000 negative determination for TA-W-37,082. Connecting rods were an insignificant percentage of output at the subject firm plant. The majority of production at the OMC Evinrude plant in Milwaukee, Wisconsin was transferred domestically.

Conclusion

After review of the application and investigative findings, I conclude that there has been no error or misinterpretation of the law or the facts which would justify reconsideration of the Department of Labor's prior decision. Accordingly, the application is denied.

Signed at Washington, D.C. this 20th day of April 2000.

Edward A. Tomchick,
Director, Division of Trade Adjustment Assistance.
