

incentives and disincentives for businesses and consumers to use such programs?

(11) A variety of arrangements have been developed through international organizations and private sector bodies to facilitate ADR, particularly in a commercial global context. What lessons have been learned from these experiences that might contribute to better understanding of this area in the context of consumer online transactions?

(12) To what extent are mechanisms that have been designed to prevent disputes from arising in online consumer transactions, such as escrow accounts, being used in the online world? Are there legal or other obstacles to the development of these types of mechanisms?

Elements of Fair and Effective Dispute Resolution Programs for Online Consumer Transactions

(13) The OECD "Guidelines on Consumer Protection in the Context of Electronic Commerce" encourage businesses, consumer representatives and governments to "work together to continue to provide consumers with the option of alternative dispute resolution mechanisms that provide effective resolution of the dispute in a fair and timely manner and without undue cost of burden to the consumer." What are some steps that could be taken to implement this principle? How can issues such as those raised in questions 4 through 7 (above) be considered in this context?

(14) What issues are raised or created for ADR, if any, by online consumer transactions that do not exist in the traditional, offline environment?

Role of Governments

(15) What should be the role of governments, if any, in connection with the use and/or development of alternative dispute resolution programs for online consumer transactions?

(16) What, if any, U.S. laws or international treaties to which the United States is a member, would have to be examined as potential barriers to implement effective alternative dispute resolution programs for online consumer transactions?

Workshop

(17) What should be the primary focus and scope of the public workshop on alternative dispute resolution for online consumer transactions?

(18) Are there any other interests not previously described in this notice that should be represented at the workshop?

By direction of the Commission.

Dated: February 11, 2000.

Donald S. Clark,

Secretary.

Barbara S. Wellbery
