

A review of that decision shows the workers produced different products than the subject plant products and thus that decision is not relevant to the work performed at the subject plant.

Conclusion

After review of the application and investigative findings, I conclude that there has been no error or misinterpretation of the law or of the facts which would justify reconsideration of the Department of Labor's prior decision. Accordingly, the application is denied.

Fluor Daniel, Facility and Plant Services, Rochester, MN; Notice of Negative Determination Regarding Application for Reconsideration

By application of June 3, 2003, a petitioner requested administrative reconsideration of the Department's negative determination regarding eligibility for workers and former workers of the subject firm to apply for Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA). The denial notice applicable to workers of Fluor Daniel, Rochester, Minnesota was signed on April 29, 2003, and published in the Federal Register on May 9, 2003 (68 FR 25060).

Pursuant to 29 CFR 90.18(c) reconsideration may be granted under the following circumstances:

(1) If it appears on the basis of facts not previously considered that the determination complained of was erroneous;

(2) If it appears that the determination complained of was based on a mistake in the determination of facts not previously considered; or

(3) If in the opinion of the Certifying Officer, a misinterpretation of facts or of the law justified reconsideration of the decision.

The TAA petition was filed on behalf of workers at Fluor Daniel, Rochester, Minnesota engaged in activities related to facility management services for an unaffiliated firm. The petition was denied because the petitioning workers did not produce an article within the meaning of section 222(3) of the Act.

Having reviewed the initial investigation, it was established that the correct subsidiary of the affected worker group is Fluor Daniel, Facilities & Plant Services, Rochester, Minnesota.

The petitioner quotes a section of the petition instructions concerning "Secondary Worker Impact" that defines secondary workers as "employed by firms that either supply components (emphasis provided by petitioner) to a trade affected firm, or assemble of finish products for a trade-affected firm." The petitioner also cites the certification of IBM Storage Technology Division, Rochester, Minnesota, for whom the subject firm workers performed facility management services on a contract basis. The petitioner appears to be implying that the petitioning worker group is eligible for TAA as a secondary supplier to a primary trade-certified firm.

In fact, eligibility on the basis of secondary supplier impact concerns production workers exclusively. However, as has already been noted, the petitioning worker group was not found to have produced a product. In addition, facility management services cannot be construed as a component part of the final product produced by the trade certified firm.

Only in very limited instances are service workers certified for TAA, namely the worker separations must be caused by a reduced demand for their services from a parent or controlling firm or subdivision whose workers produce an article and who are currently under certification for TAA.

Conclusion

After review of the application and investigative findings, I conclude that there has been no error or misinterpretation of the law or of the facts which would justify reconsideration of the Department of Labor's prior decision. Accordingly, the application is denied.

Gateway Country Store LLC, Asheville, NC; Notice of Negative Determination Regarding Application for Reconsideration

By application postmarked May 17, 2003, a petitioner requested administrative reconsideration of the Department's negative determination regarding eligibility for workers and former workers of the subject firm to apply for Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA). The denial notice applicable to workers of Gateway Country Store LLC, Asheville, North Carolina was signed on April 29, 2003, and published in the Federal Register on April 24, 2003 (68 FR 20177).

Pursuant to 29 CFR 90.18(c) reconsideration may be granted under the following circumstances:

(1) If it appears on the basis of facts not previously considered that the determination complained of was erroneous;

(2) If it appears that the determination complained of was based on a mistake in the determination of facts not previously considered; or

(3) If in the opinion of the Certifying Officer, a misinterpretation of facts or of the law justified reconsideration of the decision.

The TAA petition was filed on behalf of workers at Gateway Country Store LLC, Asheville, North Carolina engaged in activities related to computer sales and related retail services. The petition was denied because the petitioning workers did not produce an article within the meaning of section 222(3) of the Act.

The petitioner asserts that the main competition for the Gateway computers sold by the petitioning worker group is a company that produces computers in China. Apparently, the allegation appears to be that this competition is affecting the downturn in production of Gateway computers, and consequently leading to layoffs of the retail workers selling these products.

In order to be eligible for trade adjustment assistance, the subject firm workers must produce an article within the meaning of section 222 of the Trade Act. Workers of Gateway Country Store LLC, Asheville, North Carolina do not produce an article and thus do not meet the eligibility requirements for TAA.

Only in very limited instances are service workers certified for TAA, namely the worker separations must be caused by a reduced demand for their services from a parent or controlling firm or subdivision whose workers produce an article and who are currently under certification for TAA.

Conclusion

After review of the application and investigative findings, I conclude that there has been no error or misinterpretation of the law or of the facts which would justify reconsideration of the Department of Labor's prior decision. Accordingly, the application is denied.

GetronicsWang Co. LLC, dba Getronics, Valley View, Ohio; Notice of Negative Determination Regarding Application for Reconsideration

By application of June 2, 2003, a petitioner requested administrative reconsideration of the Department's negative determination regarding eligibility for workers and former workers of the subject firm to apply for Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA). The denial notice applicable to workers of GetronicsWang Co. LLC dba Getronics, Valley View, Ohio was signed on April 23, 2003, and published in the Federal Register on May 7, 2003 (68 FR 24503).

Pursuant to 29 CFR 90.18(c) reconsideration may be granted under the following circumstances:

(1) If it appears on the basis of facts not previously considered that the determination complained of was erroneous;

(2) If it appears that the determination complained of was based on a mistake in the determination of facts not previously considered; or

(3) If in the opinion of the Certifying Officer, a misinterpretation of facts or of the law justified reconsideration of the decision.

The TAA petition was filed on behalf of workers at GetronicsWang Co. LLC dba Getronics, Valley View, Ohio engaged in activities related to data processing and related services for an unaffiliated company: LTV Steel at two work sites in Cleveland, Ohio. The petition was denied because the petitioning workers did not produce an article within the meaning of section 222(3) of the Act.

In the request for reconsideration, the petitioners state that their layoffs are attributable to the import impact that led to the bankruptcy, and subsequent TAA certification, of their contracting firm. From a review of the petition in the initial investigation, it appears that the petitioners are attempting to allege that they are applying on a secondary basis, meeting that eligibility criterion on the basis that they worked for a primary impacted trade certified firm.

In order to be eligible for trade adjustment assistance, the petitioning worker group would have to produce a product; data processing and related services do not constitute production of an article as defined in section 222 of the Trade Act. In addition, data processing and related services can neither be construed as a component part of the steel products produced by the trade certified firm, nor does it fit the definition of finishing or assembling the trade certified product, thus petitioning workers can not be considered as secondarily impacted workers.

Only in very limited instances are service workers certified for TAA, namely the worker separations must be caused by a reduced demand for their services from a parent or controlling firm or subdivision whose workers produce an article and who are currently under certification for TAA.

Conclusion

After review of the application and investigative findings, I conclude that there has been no error or misinterpretation of the law or of the facts which would justify reconsideration of the Department of Labor's prior decision. Accordingly, the application is denied.

Jabil Global Services, Inc., Tampa, FL; Notice of Negative Determination Regarding Application for Reconsideration

By application of April 24, 2003, a company official requested administrative reconsideration of the Department's negative determination regarding eligibility for workers and former workers of the subject firm to apply for Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA). The denial notice applicable to workers of Jabil Global Services, Inc., Tampa, Florida was signed on March 26, 2003, and published in the Federal Register on April 7, 2003 (68 FR 16834).

Pursuant to 29 CFR 90.18(c) reconsideration may be granted under the following circumstances:

(1) If it appears on the basis of facts not previously considered that the determination complained of was erroneous;

(2) If it appears that the determination complained of was based on a mistake in the determination of facts not previously considered; or

(3) If in the opinion of the Certifying Officer, a misinterpretation of facts or of the law justified reconsideration of the decision.

The TAA petition was filed on behalf of workers at Jabil Global Services, Inc., Tampa, Florida engaged in computer refurbishment (i.e., repair, rebuild, and overhaul) services. The petition was denied because the petitioning workers did not produce an article within the meaning of section 222(3) of the Act.

The petitioners allege that repair and rebuilding performed by the subject firm workers constitutes production because the warranty that covered this repair was part of the "new buy price" of computers initially produced by the firm that the subject firm performs contract work for.

Repair and refurbishment of products already purchased does not constitute production within the context of eligibility requirements for trade adjustment assistance.

The company official seemed to imply that the subject firm provided "value added services" to computer parts through upgrades to circuitry to address specific design problems "that were related to the original design problems."

A clarifying call to the company official confirmed that upgrades on these computer and/or components
