

which have an obstructed view to the rear.

State Regulations: Virginia and Washington

Washington and Virginia have their own state occupational safety and health programs and have issued regulations designed to prevent backover incidents. In Virginia, vehicles with an obstructed view to the rear, whether used in construction or general industry, must have a backup alarm audible above the surrounding noise level. The driver must also have the assistance of a camera, work with a spotter, or “visually determine that no employee is in the path of the vehicle” prior to backing (16VAC25-97-30).

The State of Washington’s regulation is limited in scope to dump trucks. Washington’s rule requires “an operable mechanical device that provides the driver a full view behind the dump truck [to be] used, such as a video camera,” or spotters when using dump trucks when people will be walking behind them (WAC 296-155-610(2)(f)).

II. Stakeholder Meetings

Stakeholder meetings are meant to provide an opportunity for affected employers and employees, as well as safety professionals and equipment makers, to inform OSHA of the best means to address the risks of backovers. The Agency is interested in collecting information for all industries on:

- The risks of backovers;
- Current measures taken to address backover hazards;
- The effectiveness of those measures;
- Information about the number of vehicles or employees affected; and
- The costs of protective measures.

III. Public Participation

Each stakeholder meeting will have 15–20 active participants with room for 20–30 observers. Meetings are expected to last about two hours. Stakeholders may register as “participants” or “observers.” Participants will actively participate in discussions and present their views and experience, while observers typically will not have an opportunity to speak unless time permits at the end of the meeting. Stakeholders may only register as participants in one of the two sessions. Each meeting will have the same questions or agenda. If too few stakeholders register for a particular session, the Agency will eliminate that session and combine it with another and inform registrants of the change. The meetings will be conducted as group discussions, with individual stakeholders describing what occurs in their business or industry with regard to backover hazards. To facilitate as much group interaction as possible, formal presentations will not be permitted.

OSHA staff will be present to take part in the discussions. Logistics for the meetings are being managed by Eastern Research Group (ERG). Participants and observers must register to attend by contacting ERG via one of the methods described at the beginning of this notice. Participants and observers will be registered on a first-come, first-serve basis. If there is room at the meeting, stakeholders or the general public can attend as observers if they have not pre-registered. Any changes to the schedule of meetings will be noted at the ERG Web site.

OSHA will have a facilitator at the stakeholder meetings to help guide the discussion and record notes on flip charts. ERG provides a summary of comments at the meeting which OSHA will place on the backover Web page at <http://www.osha.gov/doc/topics/backover/index.html>. In order to encourage a free exchange of views, information, and ideas, these notes will not identify the individuals who make comments. ERG makes an audio recording of each session to ensure that the summary notes are accurate, but these recordings will not be transcribed or published. Although members of the press may attend stakeholder meetings, the Agency asks them not to quote speakers by name or affiliation in any published reports, as the intent of the meeting is informational only. An example of stakeholder summary comments can be found here: http://www.osha.gov/recordkeeping/pdf/Modernization_DC_5-25-10.pdf.
